FOREWORD

Since no previous effort appears to have been made to assemble and to publish a record of the descendants of STEPHEN[1] TRACY, the author undertook that task as a memorial to that man and to those who followed him—who, each in their own period and place, helped by their toil, suffering and faith to create our government and country, reclaiming it from the wilderness that it might grow to the proud position it now occupies among the nations. Nor was theirs an easy task, for in those first days no man knew when he went to work in the fields but that his return would find his home in ashes and his family either brutally murdered or taken captive; and no woman knew, when her menfolk went out to work or her children to play or to search for the live stock, whether they would live to return for the next meal. The courageous endurance that upheld our forebears is beyond words to describe, for in sickness the herbs of the wilderness were their only help; in their homes their own handiwork must provide their only furniture; the sheep and flax they raised must clothe them and the hands of the housewife must convert the wool from the sheep's backs to the finished garments. No weakling could hope to carry on. It was an exemplification of the survival of the fittest, and verily it was a test which built a strength and depth of character which we of this easier, more luxurious day must reverence but dare hardly hope to emulate. But since we reap the benefit of their toil, and experience the fulfilment of their vision, it behooves us to not only render due homage and honor to those who went before for their sacrifices and sufferings, but even more is it our duty to preserve intact the inheritance of freedom which cost them so dearly, by our own loyalty to the country they created and the Constitution they formed and bled for.

Therefore may this book which will find a resting place in many homes and libraries serve as a memorial, a mobile monument, to STEPHEN[1] TRACY and to his descendants who each in their own way and day, carried on.

The New England records before the Revolution are fairly complete and have been the source of much published data available for genealogical research. The shifting of people after the Revolution from New England to the west makes it difficult to follow many of the families, as there is no public record of their movements, and usually, in a generation or two, contact between related families stopped.

The author started with only a vague outline of his ancestral lines and without acquaintance with any relatives of the Tracy name. He has succeeded in recording all the descendants of the emigrant through the third generation, all bearing the name of Tracy (born Tracy), through the fifth generation, and in some lines has completed the record to the present date, which includes the tenth generation. In some instances there are no records available of any descendants, and in others they have been traced for only one or two generations and then lost.

It is to be regretted that some lines are incomplete, but other duties have prevented more extensive research. Therefore, it seems best to preserve by this publication, what has been assembled, in the hope that some one will later be able to add to it.

The author gratefully acknowledges the inspiration and assistance given to him by persons whose names appear on another page.

Information concerning any descendants of lines not recorded herein will be thankfully received.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

CAPITALIZATION

The names of our ancestors, wherever they appear, are capitalized.

SUPERIOR FIGURES

The superior figures placed immediately after and slightly above any given name (i.e., Stephen[3]) designate the generation within the family to which an individual belongs, commencing with the earliest known American ancestor as number one ([1]).

FAMILY NUMBERS

The large numerals placed at the left of the names of children in any family are repeated where the biographical record of that individual occurs. These numbers will be found in numerical sequence. The absence of such a number indicates that we have found no further record.

REFERENCES

A considerable portion of the text is based upon records of numerous recognized authorities. Much family data was furnished to the author by members of various descendant families. Such authorities as are quoted are in footnotes at end of the family record.

ANCESTRAL CHART

The Ancestral Chart at the back of this volume summarizes all lines of established American ancestry of the author through his father SAMUEL JOSEPH[7] TRACY. An identifying number precedes each name. This system provides that a father's number would invariably be double that of his child, and the mother the odd succeeding number. For purposes of identification these numbers are repeated in Part 3 which gives brief biographical sketches of many of the ancestors of SAMUEL JOSEPH[7] TRACY (supra, p. 161).

ABBREVIATIONS

The following abbreviations have been used:

TRACY GENEALOGY

TRADITIONAL ENGLISH ORIGIN

The Tracy families of Great Britain, of Ireland and of the United States are doubtless descended on the male side from a common source. The name of Tracy is from the Le Sire de Traci, a Norman Baron who went to England with the army of William the Conqueror and fought at the Battle of Hastings, his name appearing on the "Roll of Battle Abbey." The Barony of Barnstaple was given to his son, Henry de Traci, by King Stephen, in consideration of his loyalty and services to the King in the county of Devon and the western parts of England. Henry's daughter, Grace Traci, married Sir John de Sudeley, Lord of Sudeley and Baron of Toddington. The ancestry of Sir John de Sudeley through his father Harold de Mandes, Lord of Sudeley, and a partial list of his descendants, is said to be as follows:

Royal Lineage

1. Cerdic, 495-534. King of Essex from 519.
2. Cynric, 534-560. Conquered Sussex. Died 592.
3. Ceawlin (Coelin) 560-592. King of Wessex.
4. Cuthwine, 584.
5. Cuthwulf.
6. Ceolweald.
7. Coenred (Cenred) King of West Saxon.
8. Ingild (Inigild) d. 718.
9. Eoppa.
10. Eaba (Eafa).
11. Ealhmund.
12. Egbert, 785-836. King of Wessex 800. First King of all England 826-837. Married Lady Redburga.
13. Ethelwulf, King of England, 839-858. Married Osburh, daughter of Oslac, a descendant of Wihtgar, nephew of Cerdic above.
14. Alfred the Great, 848-901. Married Aethswith or (Ethelwirth) daughter of Ethelred the Great, Earl of Mercia.

15. Edward the Elder, 901-924. Married Eadgefu (Edgiva) daughter of Sigehelm, Earl of Kent.
16. Edmund I, 920-946. Married Elfgifu ("The Fairies Gift").
17. Edgar "The Peaceable," 944-975. Married Elfrida, daughter of Ordgar, Earl of Devonshire.
18. Ethelred II, "The Unready," 966-1016, King 978, abdicated 1012. Married Emma, daughter of Richard I, Duke of Normandy. His youngest daughter was
19. Goda, Princess, daughter of Ethelred. Married first, Walter de Mandes, Count of Amiens, a Norman nobleman. Her son
20. Rudolph de Mandes, came to England with his uncle, King Edward the Confessor, who created him Earl of Hereford. Died 1057. He married Gythe, who had lands in Buckingham. His son
21. Harold de Mandes was created Baron of Sudeley and Toddington, and married Lady Maud, daughter of Hugh Lupas, first Earl of Chester, a nephew of William the Conqueror.

TRACY FAMILY OF TODDINGTON

22. Sir John de Sudeley, Baron of Toddington, son of Harold de Mandes, Baron of Sudeley, married Lady Grace, daughter and heiress of Henry de Traci, feudal Baron of Barnstaple (mentioned in the introduction). The second son of Sir John and Lady Grace was William.
23. William de Traci assumed his mother's name of Traci and held Toddington of his brother Ralph by service of one knight's fee. He was one of the four knights who, in 1170, at the instigation of King Henry II, assassinated Thomas à Becket, Archbishop of Canterbury. The direct descent of the Tracys of Toddington from then on is as follows:

24. Sir Oliver Tracy, 1201, paid scutage to King John, as one of the Knights of Gloucestershire.
25. Sir William Tracy, High Sheriff of Gloucester, married Howise De Born.
26. Sir William Tracy was present at the tournament at Barnstaple by Edward the Second; made High Sheriff of County Gloucester, 1319.
27. Sir Henry Tracy of Toddington.
28. Sir Henry Tracy of Toddington.
29. Thomas Tracy, High Sheriff of Gloucestershire, 1359-1362.
30. Sir John Tracy of Toddington, High Sheriff of Gloucester, 1363-1370; knighted by King Edward the Third.
31. Henry Tracy of Toddington.
32. Sir John Tracy of Toddington, High Sheriff of Gloucester, 1379.
33. Sir William Tracy, High Sheriff of Gloucester, 1395.
34. Sir William Tracy of Toddington, High Sheriff of Gloucester, 1416, married Alice, daughter and coheiress of Sir Greay de la Spine, Lord of Coughtton. Children: William, John, and Alice.
35. Sir William Tracy of Toddington, High Sheriff of Gloucester, 1442-1444.
36. Sir William Tracy of Toddington, High Sheriff, 1449. Married Margaret, daughter of Sir John Pauncefforte. Children: Henry, Alice, and Richard.
37. Henry Tracy of Toddington, married Alice, daughter of Thomas Baldington of Adderbury, County of Oxford. Children: William, Richard, Ralph, Elizabeth, and Ann.
38. Sir William Tracy, Knight of Toddington, High Sheriff of Gloucester, married Lady Margaret, daughter of Sir Thomas Throckmorton. He was one of the first to embrace the Reformed religion. His will, directing that he should be buried without the ceremonies of the church of Rome being considered heretical, his body was ordered to be exhumed and burned. He died 1530. Children: William, Ann, Alice, Richard, and Robert.

The line of Saxon Kings is adapted from Anglo-Saxon Bishops, Kings, and Nobles, William G. Searle, 1899 (Cambridge University Press).

Genealogical Tables, B. George, Fellow of Oxford, 1916.

The lineage of The Tracy Family of Toddington is from a Genealogical Chart by J. Britton of London, 1840, as shown in "The Tracys in America" by Dwight Tracy, published by Journal of American History, 1908, with additions from other sources.

Undoubtedly younger sons of the Tracy family of Toddington settled in parts of England and in Ireland at various periods, leaving many descendants of that name. There is mention of Tracys in Norfolk and Suffolk counties in England, in records of the fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth centuries.

It is unnecessary to carry this line further, as the ancestry of STEPHEN[1] TRACY of Plymouth 1623 (ancestor of the Tracys in this record) can not definitely be connected with the same. However, a tradition has existed among the widely separated branches of the family claiming such a descent.

PARENTAGE OF STEPHEN TRACY

A Stephen Tracy was baptized at East Ruston, Norwich, in 1559, son of Christopher and Margaret Tracy. It is very probable that this is the same Stephen Tracy who later appears in the Great Yarmouth records as two of his children were named Christopher and Margaret.

STEPHEN TRACY, a resident of Great Yarmouth, county Norfolk, England, was married at that place on 23 February 1586-87 to AGNES ERDLEY who outlived her husband ten years and died there on 15 June 1640. STEPHEN was a mariner and in 1606 was admitted to the freedom of Yarmouth "gratis" by Bailiff Crowe. This was a courtesy allowed to only one person each year by each bailiff and may imply that he was not a native and would otherwise have had to purchase the freedom. He may have reimbursed the bailiff in some manner. STEPHEN died at Great Yarmouth on 22 December 1630 leaving a will which reads as follows:

25 Oct. 1630 { STEPHEN TRACY of Great Yarmouth Co. Norf. Mariner.

My body to be buried where it please God.
To ANNAS my wife my dwelling house in Yarmouth for life & then to be sold by Robert Vivens of Great Yarmouth merchant & Robert Allen of the same town, mariner, or by the Bailiffs of the said Town and proceeds divided as follows: To William Trace my son ¼, Thomas Tracy my son ¼, John Tracy my son ¼, and to my two daughters Annas & Margaret Tracy ¼ between them equally.
Residue to my wife ANNAS, sole executrix
To Robert Vivens & Robert Allen 20/—each.

Wit: Henry Fellis, John Robinson.
Pd. 27 Jan. 1630-1 by the executrix
(ArchdY. of Norwich.)

As will be seen by comparison of this will with the children listed herein, five of the eight born to STEPHEN and AGNES were beneficiaries by the will. Of the other three the first daughter named Margaret, died young, Christopher was doubtless dead and STEPHEN had presumably received his portion at the time of his entering upon the great adventure of casting his lot with the Pilgrims in Leyden, and later in the New World.

The children of STEPHEN and AGNES (ERDLEY) TRACY, all (except Christopher) baptized in Great Yarmouth Parish:

i. William, bp. 30 November 1587. Will dated 10 June 1650 and probated 15 February 1650-1, mentioned wife Elizabeth and daughter Elizabeth; Thomas, the son of his brother Thomas, John, the son of his brother Christopher, and sister Agnes, wife of Robert Wells.

ii. Thomas, bp. 11 January 1589-90. Was living 25 October 1630 (mentioned in father's will).

iii. Christopher, b. probably 1592-3; d. apparently before 25 October 1630. His son John mentioned in will of brother, William Tracy.

iv. Ann, Annas or Agnes, bp. 25 April 1594; m. probably after 25 October 1630 to Robert Wells.

1. v. STEPHEN, bp. 28 December 1596. The emigrant to Leyden, Holland, and to Plymouth Colony. Not mentioned in father's will, probably on account of removing to America.

vi. Margaret, bp. 23 September 1599; d. 20 September 1603.

vii. John, bp. 29 December 1601 (mentioned in his father's will).

viii. Margaret, bp. 12 May 1604 (mentioned in father's will, 25 October 1630; unm.)

The English research was performed, and parentage of the emigrant established, by Mr. Bower Marsh, well known London genealogist (see facsimile facing this page).

STEPHEN TRACY

1. STEPHEN[1] TRACY, son of STEPHEN and AGNES (ERDLEY) TRACY, was baptized at Great Yarmouth, England, on 28 December 1596. Some time in 1620 or perhaps even earlier, STEPHEN[1] came to a decision and took a step which had a far-reaching effect on his own life and the lives of all his descendants. He decided to break all home ties and join the colony of Pilgrims at Leyden, Holland. It is possible that he was following the lady of his choice, for in Great Yarmouth there was then a Lee family and in a "Betrothal book" of the Leyden Archives is found the full record concerning the marriage of STEPHEN[1] TRACY to TRYPHOSA LEE. This includes the entry of their appearance before the officials on 18 December 1620, the publishing of the Banns on 19 and 24 December and on 1 January, and finally the marriage itself on 2 January 1620-1. This record calls STEPHEN[1] a "say-worker, bachelor from England" and adds that Anthony Clements a friend came with him, while TRYPHOSA LEE is called "spinster, also from England" and an acquaintance Rose Jennings accompanied her.

Leyden Documents relating to the Pilgrim Fathers, E. J. Brill, Ltd., 1920, p. 112; plate XLII.

The Pilgrim Community at Leyden numbered about three hundred members, most of whom migrated to America. Including friends who joined them at Plymouth, England, one hundred and two Pilgrims set out for the New World on the "Mayflower" and arrived at the coast of what was afterwards known as Plymouth Colony 21 December 1620; thirty sailed on the "Fortune," arriving 9 November 1621; and sixty sailed on the "Ann" and "Little James" in 1623.

STEPHEN[1] and TRYPHOSA lived at Leyden for a time and doubtless their daughter Sarah[2] was born there, but evidently they were imbued with the same ideals as the Pilgrims for STEPHEN[1] came to the New World among those on the "Ann" which sailed from England in the latter part of April 1623 and arrived at Plymouth late in July or early in August of that year.

It has usually been assumed that STEPHEN[1] brought with him on the "Ann" his wife TRYPHOSA as well as daughter Sarah[2], for at the division of land in 1623 when an acre was assigned for each member of a family, for garden purposes, STEPHEN[1] was granted three acres on Wellingsley Brook. But a document is extant listing a number of people who had "Licences to Pass from England Beyond the Seas" and among these as of 3 May 1624 was "TRACE, TRIFOZA, (aged) 28, wife of STEPHEN TRACE, resident in Laiden, (to pass) to the same; also her daughter, Jane Trace, 15 months old." (The Genealogist, New Series 1907-8, XXIV, 275.) There seem to be two reasonable possibilities to reconcile this long standing belief, that TRYPHOSA came in 1623 with STEPHEN[1], as against the license quoted: She may have come with STEPHEN[1] and some one else may have made use of their names in order to leave England without question—for it was difficult to secure permission to leave that country and subterfuges were freely used to obtain the desired licenses. Or, it may be that TRYPHOSA had gone to her girlhood home in England for the birth of a daughter Jane about February 1623 and that some relative of theirs had come over with STEPHEN[1] to care for Sarah[2] and to thus ease the subsequent trip for TRYPHOSA when she should follow them. In such case of course Jane[2] must have died early.

At the division of cattle in 1627 TRYPHOSA was named with STEPHEN[1] (as were also Sarah[2] and Rebecca[2]) and that is the only instance where her name appears of record in New England. They received shares in the "tenth lot" and "to this lott ffell an heyfer of the last year called the white belyd heyfer and two shee goats." It is uncertain when STEPHEN[1] TRACY moved from Plymouth to Duxbury. Some families lived on their clearings at Duxbury during mild and warm weather, returning to Plymouth in the winter. However, he seems to have been definitely established in Duxbury in 1633, when his name appeared on the list of freemen, and he had acquired land near Jones River in Duxbury, the location of which is shown in a map published by the Miles Standish Monument Association of Duxbury (1923, see sketch following p. 24). The Colony records show that in 1636 he used the mark of a slit under the ear on his animals. In 1637 a highway was laid through his property at Jones River. In 1639 he was constable of Duxbury. He served as a grand juryman 1640-42, and was employed at surveying at various times. In 1643 and 1646 his name appeared on the list of freemen. He had an interest in the purchase of Dartmouth, Massachusetts, as shown in the account of the shareholders' meeting at Plymouth, 7 March 1652. Apparently his wife TRYPHOSA had died, and desiring to visit his native land and relatives at Great Yarmouth, he returned to England about 1653-4. He became ill there within a year and realizing that he would be unable to return to America he signed a power of attorney (see facsimile facing this page) which was the equivalent of a will. The text of this document reads as follows:

Facsimile of Will of STEPHEN[1] TRACY

iv. Mary, living 1655, mentioned by father in will.

2. v. JOHN, b. 1633.

2. JOHN[2] TRACY (STEPHEN[1]) was born at what became Duxbury, Massachusetts, in 1633 and died at Windham, Connecticut, on 30 May 1718. He married MARY[2] PRENCE, daughter of Governor THOMAS[1] PRENCE and his second wife MARY COLLIER. JOHN[2] was proposed as a freeman in June 1656 and was admitted as such in June 1657. In 1658 he was a constable of Duxbury and he served many times as grand juryman, as arbitrator and as town surveyor. Having served first as an ensign in the militia he was elected lieutenant in 1684; was a selectman continuously from 1677 to 1694 and colony representative from Duxbury in 1683, 1684 and 1686. During his residence in Duxbury he was usually referred to as Ensign JOHN[2] TRACY. In January 1694-95 he deeded to his son John[3] land near Jones River which was probably the original STEPHEN[1] TRACY homestead.

In 1701 he certified to surveying certain land and that year in July the selectmen chose Ensign JOHN[2] with two others to notify the minister of his election. At the same meeting twenty acres of land was granted to Deborah (——) Tracy widow of John[3] Tracy deceased. On 25 March 1704 JOHN[2] deeded land at Prince's Bottom at Plymouth to Nathaniel Warren and about that time he removed to Windham, Connecticut, to live with his son STEPHEN[3].

The children of JOHN[2] and MARY (PRENCE) TRACY, all born in Duxbury:

3. i. John[3] Jr., b. about 1661.

ii. Apphia, b. about 1663; d. at Eastham, Massachusetts, 15 December, 1739; m. 5 December 1683, John Sparrow of Eastham, b. 2 November 1656; d. at Eastham 23 February 1734-35, son of Jonathan and Rebecca (Bangs) Sparrow.

Children (Sparrow):

1. Rebecca, b. 23 December 1684.
2. John, b. 24 August 1687.

3. Elizabeth, b. 19 January 1689.
4. Steven, b. 6 September 1694.

Eastham and Orleans, Mass., V.R.

iii. Hannah, b. about 1666. Deed dated 28 June 1700 from Hannah Tracy to Jeremiah Bacon transferred interest in her mother's estate. No other record of her.

4. iv. STEPHEN, b. 1673 or 1674.

v. Susannah, b. about 1676; m. at Eastham 17 February 1697-98, James Rogers, b. at Eastham 30 October 1673; d. there 8 September 1751, son of James and Mary (Paine) Rogers.

Children (Rogers), all born at Eastham, Massachusetts:

1. Mary, b. 12 November 1698.
2. Isaac, b. 8 December 1701.
3. Susanna, b. 19 January 1703-4.
4. James, b. 2 May 1706.
5. Abigail, b. 3 August 1708.
6. Thomas, b. 21 October 1710.

3. John[3] Tracy (JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born about 1661 at Duxbury and died there before July 1701. He married about 1682-83 Deborah —— of unknown identity. He was town surveyor in 1690. On 4 July 1695 "John Trasie" and Deborah his wife deeded to John Bradford of Plymouth land located near Jones River brook which had been deeded to John[3] by his father on 11 January 1694-95. On 25 January 1696-97 John[3] transferred to Jeremiah Bacon of Barnstable all his rights to certain land in the town of Middleborough which once belonged to THOMAS[1] PRENCE, formerly Governor of the New England Colonies and which derived to the grantor through his mother MARY (PRENCE) TRACY.

In those early days a removal from one town to another without first getting approval of residents or authorities of the new location was considered quite an offense and many instances are of record where families who presently proved themselves valued acquisitions, were at their arrival "warned out of town." And so it was with John[3] who moved to Marshfield with his family without first getting permission from that town for on 28 June 1697 the selectmen served on him an order to depart. He then moved back to Duxbury and soon died there, for on 17 July 1701 widow Deborah Tracy was given twenty acres of land by order of the selectmen. For some reason she sold this property on 10 November 1702 to Thomas Bourne, whose son later married her daughter. In following out the descendants of John[3] Tracy, a portion of the evidence has rested upon a statement made (see page 33) by Olive[5] Tracy, daughter of John of Providence, Rhode Island, and upon the axiom that things equal to the same thing are equal to each other. For this Olive[5] in 1812 gave to the Reverend Stephen[5] Tracy (James[4], STEPHEN[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) the statement that her grandfather was a John Tracy, Jr. and that his son John (her father) had a brother Thomas, a sister Deborah who married a Bourne, a sister Sarah who died young at Windham and a sister Tryphosa who married a Ford and lived in Duxbury. This quite reasonably identifies John of Providence as John[4] son of John[3] and the appearance of the name "Prince" among the descendants of the Providence family strengthens the case. Therefore we may safely say that:

The children of John[3] and Deborah (——) Tracy, all born at Duxbury:

i. Susanna[4], b. October 1683; d. 25 February 1766; m at Duxbury 4 November 1715, John Simmons, b there 22 February 1670; d. 1739, son of John and Mercy (Pabodie) Simmons. His will in 1739 gave guardianship of Joel and Leah of Duxbury to widow Susanna Simmons, mother, and Thomas Tracy of Marshfield.

ii. Tracy, b. 1762.
iii. Sarah, b. 1764.
iv. Charity, b. 1767.

4. STEPHEN[3] TRACY (JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Duxbury, Massachusetts, in 1673-4 and died at Windham, Connecticut, 19 December 1769. He married at Windham 26 June 1707, DEBORAH BINGHAM, who was born 18 December 1683 and died 6 December 1735, daughter of Deacon THOMAS and MARY (RUDD) BINGHAM. Her father came from Norwich, Connecticut, to Windham in 1693 and was a deacon and a prominent citizen there for many years.

STEPHEN[3] TRACY moved to Windham, Connecticut, about 1700 for a deed of 19 January 1703-4 called him of that place.

By this deed he conveyed to Jeremiah Bacon certain lands which he had inherited from his mother MARY (PRENCE) TRACY, and which came to her from her father Governor THOMAS[1] PRENCE. In January 1696-7 Bacon had acquired the rights of John[3] Tracy and in June 1700 he had gotten those of Hannah[3] Tracy to their mother's inherited land holdings.

STEPHEN[3] acquired land from Whiting and Smith which was quit claimed to him to clear title on 4 December 1707 by John Mason and Owaneco, an Indian Sachem. This consisted of one hundred and forty seven acres on west side of the Shetucket River, and was later referred to as being west of Shetucket River and a little north of Jeremiah Welch's home farm of a recent generation. STEPHEN[3] probably preceded his father JOHN[2] to Windham, as it would have taken some time to improve the land and his father was then aged. He lived at the old Gideon Cross farm not far from the Moulton neighborhood in Windham.

On 5 March 1710-11 he acquired from Ralph Wheelock of Windham, three and one-half acres of land; on 24 November 1727 he purchased from Henry Legrant for £54 "all of the lands, buildings and tenements bought of Ebenezer Genings and Robert Badcock"; and on 24 November 1731 purchased of Jabez Bingham of Norwich, for £66.8.2, a one hundred acre lot in Windham, lying on the east side of Beaver Brook. He made further purchases of land in 1754, all of which show that he was a fairly prosperous farmer.

The original will of STEPHEN[3] TRACY on file at Hartford Connecticut, was dated 7 June 1755, was proved on 22 December 1769 and approved 2 January 1770 (see facsimile opposite page). The will mentioned sons Prince[4], John[4], James[4], THOMAS[4], and daughter Deborah, wife of Increase Moseley. It gave James[4] thirty-five acres out of the farm "where I now dwell, on the west side of the Shetucket River, and which I deeded to him 27 Apr. 1755. The one-hundred acre lot at Beaver Brook (now in the town of Scotland) to be divided to the children equally, provided I do not sell it in my lifetime." "Prince, John, and daughter Deborah have had part of the estate before." An inventory taken 27 December 1769 totaled £708.8.6. A distribution dated 7 May 1770 set off land to THOMAS[4], Prince[4], John[4] Tracy, to Deborah Moseley, and to the heirs of James[4], who were Stephen[5] and Nathaniel[5].

Both STEPHEN[3] and his wife DEBORAH were buried in old Windham Cemetery. Photographs of tombstones and inscriptions follow p. 34.

The children of STEPHEN[3] and DEBORAH (BINGHAM) TRACY, all born at Windham:

i. Mary[4], b. 26 August 1708; d. probably young as there is no record of her marriage, nor mention of her in father's will.

7. ii. Prince, b. 27 January 1710-11.

iii. Deborah, b. 8 January 1714; d. at Clarendon, Vermont, 6 September 1777; m. 7 May 1735, Increase Moseley, b. at Norwich, Connecticut, 18 May 1712, and d. at Clarendon, Vermont, 2 May 1795, son of Increase and Mary (Pabodie) Moseley.
Children (Moseley):

1. Abisha, b. 6 June 1736; m. 14 December 1757, Lois Dutton and had a family.
2. Abner, b. 17 May 1738; d. 22 February 1812; m. 18 September 1765, Ann Clark who d. 1839.
3. Increase, b. 13 October 1740; d. 1811; m. 15 October 1769, Patience Hinman. Lived in Woodbury and Southbury, Connecticut. Colonel in Revolution. Had family.
4. Molly, b. ——; m. 18 March 1754, William Hooker.
5. Deborah, b. 11 November 1748; m. John Clark of Middletown, Connecticut.
6. Susannah, b. 11 June 1751; d. young.
7. Prince, b. 9 October 1753; m. Mary Newton and went to Vermont.
8. Tryphena, b. 12 July 1758; m. Mr. Bronson and went to Vermont.

8. iv. John, b. 25 April 1718.

9. v. James, b. 15 January 1720.

vi. Nathaniel, b. 21 June 1722; d. 11 October 1750, unm. Buried in Windham Cemetery. Epitaph: "Here lies the body of the well beloved Mr. Nathaniel Tracy, son to Mr. STEPHEN TRACY and Mrs. DEBORAH, his wife, who died October ye 11th a.d. 1750 in the 29th year of his age."

10. vii. THOMAS, b. 19 August 1725.

5. Thomas[4] Tracy (John[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Duxbury in 1688 and died at Pembroke, Massachusetts, 8 December 1755. He married (1) at Marshfield 3 June 1723, Lusanna (Snow) Waterman, who was born there 7 March 1682-83 and died at Pembroke 7 March 1732, widow of Joseph Waterman and daughter of Josiah and Rebecca (Barker) Snow; and (2) 28 May 1733, Lydia (Randall) Barstow, widow of Samuel Barstow, and daughter of Job Randall of Scituate.

The child of Thomas[4] and Lusanna (Snow) Waterman Tracy, born at Marshfield:

11. i. Asaph[5], b. 12 October 1723.
Marshfield V.R. and Plymouth Probate Records.

6. John[4] Tracy* (John[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Duxbury about 1695 and died in 1751. He married at Providence, Rhode Island, 2 January 1727-28, Mary Hawkins who died in 1767. It is said that both were buried in the Hawkins Cemetery near his farm but no gravestones mark the place. He moved to Providence before 1723 when the records show that he bought land, and he bought other land in 1728 and 1730 from William Hawk. He was a farmer.

The children of John[4] and Mary (Hawkins) Tracy, born at Providence, Rhode Island (Vital Records):

12. i. John[5], b. 20 January 1728-29; m. Eunice Jencks.

*The record of John[4] and his family is taken from Dwight Tracy's manuscript on the Tracy Family, in possession of New York Genealogical and Biographical Society. This compilation was based on the statement of Olive[5] Tracy above in March 1812 to Reverend Stephen[5] Tracy (see facsimile opposite); with additions from the Rhode Island Vital Records, and confirmation by material furnished by Benjamin Franklin[8] Tracy (see p. 115) whose ancestry was published in the Genealogy of Southern New York by Cutter, III, 1414, N. Y. G. & B. Soc. Library. Town Records show that widow Mary Tracy received many payments from town of Johnston, Rhode Island, for keeping her helpless daughter Lois[5] Tracy from 1750 to 1766, and afterwards Miss Olive[5] Tracy received similar payments until death of Lois[5], about 1790.

Translation and Explanation

Genealogy of our family of Tracys taken Sept. 1812 — taken from the mouth of Miss Olive Tracy of Johnston [R.I. formerly a part of the town of Providence].

John[3] Tracy of Duxbury, brother to Stephen[3] Tracy of Windham [Conn.] who had sons John[4] and Thomas[4]; Deborah who married a Bourne in Windham [?]. Sarah died young in Windham. Tryphosa married a Ford and lived in Duxbury.

John[4] Tracy lived in Johnston, Rhode Island.

John[5] the eldest son lives in Adams, Mass. with his daughter (Priscilla) who married Dudley Loveland.

Prince[5] supposed to live in Maryland or Pennsylvania.

Deborah[5] who married a Wade in Foster, Rhode Island.

Sarah[5] who married first Peter Smith; married second Sewell Hewet now lives a widow in Clarksburg [Berkshire co., Mass.].

Olive[5] [the narrator living in Johnston, Rhode Island].

Lois[5] who is dead.

This document proves the ancestry of John[4] Tracy who lived in Rhode Island and John[5] Tracy who lived in Adams, Mass. from whom General Benjamin Franklin[8] Tracy is descended. Generation numbers and Capitalization are injected for identification.

ii. Deborah, b. 20 February 1730-31; m. 1750 or 1760 Mr. Wade of Foster, Rhode Island.

iii. Prince, b. 20 February 1730-31. Went to Maryland or Pennsylvania. (William & Mary Quarterly, XXXIV, 200, shows a Prince Tracy will filed in Goochland County, Va. D.B. 21-P. 298, 18 August 1812.) Might this be this Prince?

iv. Mary, b. 22 March 1732-33; d. probably young.

v. Sarah, b. 18 May 1735; m. (1) Peter Smith; (2) Sewell Hewitt. (Lived a widow at Clarksburg, Massachusetts, 1812.)

vi. Eve, b. 14 May 1738; d. probably young.

vii. Adam, b. 27 May 1742; d. probably young.

viii. Olive, b. 27 August 1744; unm. 1812 (narrator of record, as shown opp. page 32); d. at Providence (Johnston) 1812-1820.

ix. Lois, b. 18 October 1746; d. 1790.

7. Prince[4] Tracy (STEPHEN[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Windham, Connecticut, 27 January 1710-11 and married at Lebanon, Connecticut, 29 May 1766, Elizabeth Holbrook, born there 23 October 1729, daughter of Nathaniel and Martha (Wright) Holbrook. He was a member of the Congregational church in 1751; served in the French and Indian War with his brothers John[4] and James[4]; was selectman at Windham in 1761, and a charter proprietor of township of Hartford, Windsor County, Vermont, but he did not remove to that place. In Windham he held the offices of clerk, treasurer and assessor about 1761-6. He was mentioned in his father's will, by which he received a part of his land and later acquired more of it by purchase from the other heirs. Both he and his son Prince[5] are listed in the 1790 census as of Windham and on 1 August 1793 Prince[4] and Prince[5] with Daniel Holbrook, a relative, sold their homes and removed to Tunbridge, Vermont, where Prince[4] died.

The children of Prince[4] and Elizabeth (Holbrook) Tracy:

i. Prince[5], b. at Windham, Connecticut 8 July 1767. No record of marriage. He is mentioned in census of 1790 as head of family of 3 males and 2 females. In 1793 he joined his father and Daniel Holbrook (his mother's kin) in a deed and moved with his father to Tunbridge, Vermont. Left that place without family for parts unknown.

ii. Elizabeth, b. 16 June 1770. Living at Tunbridge about 1850.

iii. Lucy, b. 31 May 1772; d. in childhood.

Connecticut State and family records.

8. John[4] Tracy (STEPHEN[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Windham, Connecticut, on 25 April 1718, and died in Judea Parish of Woodbury, now Washington, Connecticut, 11 September 1797. He married (1) at Woodbury, 15 November 1760, Jemima Copely who died there 10 December 1765; (2) at that place 17 June 1767, Abigail (Slosson) Skeel, widow of Jonathan Skeel. She died January 1813. He served as lieutenant in the French and Indian War.

The child of John[4] and Jemima (Copely) Tracy:

i. Stephen[5], b. 11 October 1764. Woodbury Records and Probate Records show he was only child and heir.

Church and town records of Washington and Woodbury, Conn.

9. James[4] Tracy (STEPHEN[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Windham, Connecticut, 15 January 1720, and died at Fort Edward, New York, 21 September 1756. He married at Windham, 26 May 1748, Susannah Bishop who was born at Norwich, Connecticut, 26 December 1727, and died at Windham, 24 November 1750, daughter of Samuel and Sarah (Forbes) Bishop. James[4] was a farmer; a lieutenant, and served in the French and Indian War. His father deeded to him thirty-five acres of land 27 April 1755.

The children of James[4] and Susannah (Bishop) Tracy, born at Windham:

13. i. Stephen[5], b. 27 April 1749.

14. ii. Nathaniel, b. 31 October 1750.

10. THOMAS[4] TRACY (STEPHEN[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Windham, Connecticut, 19 August 1725, died 28 January 1821 and was buried in Centre Town Cemetery,

Deacon Thomas Bingham

"Here lies the Body of that Holy man of God. Deacon Thomas Bingham was a man Emenant for Piety, Love & Charity. He was a son of Mr. Thomas & Mrs. Mary Bingham, Liveing in Sheffield, Yorkshier, in England. He Dyed Jan. 1729."

Stephen[3] Tracy

"Here Lies the Body of Stephen Tracy who departed this life Dec. 19th 1769, in the 96th year of his age."

Deborah Tracy

"Here lies the Body of Mrs. Deborah, wife of Stephen, who died Dec. 6, 1735, in the 52d year of her age."

Hartford, Vermont. He married at Windham, 28 October 1751, ELIZABETH WARNER, born there, 9 November 1727 and died at Hartford, Vermont, 25 March 1801, daughter of Lieutenant JOSEPH and ELIZABETH (ALLEN) WARNER. (See Warner family p. 136.)

THOMAS[4] TRACY was a farmer and was commissioned as lieutenant of militia of Connecticut Colony by Captain General Thomas Fitch, 15 May 1764. He was one of the charter proprietors of the town of Hartford, Vermont, and moved there with his family in 1776. In the first division of land by lottery he drew "No. 16" on Connecticut river south of White river. On 20 April 1780 he bought the whole right of Nathaniel Holbrook and on 25 May 1781 bought the whole right of Daniel Newcomb. These purchases, with his own right, and the pitches he made, gave him the proprietorship of about fourteen hundred acres of land. He took a prominent part in the municipal affairs of the town; served in the militia, doing frontier service, and was an upright, highly esteemed citizen. The names of THOMAS[4] TRACY and Sergeant Tracy appear on a payroll of Captain Hodges Company for service done at Fort Fortitude by the order of Colonel Joseph Safford from the towns of Pomfret and Hartford in October 1780. The names of THOMAS[4] TRACY, James Tracy and Sergeant Andrew Tracy appear on payroll of Captain Joshua Hazen's Company in Colonel Woods regiment which marched to Brookfield at the alarm in October 1780; also on the payroll of the same company which marched to Piermont, 9 March 1781 in the alarm at Peacham.

Vt. Rev. Rolls, pp. 201-283-355.

11. Asaph[5] Tracy (Thomas[4], John[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Marshfield, Massachusetts, 12 October 1723 and died at Pembroke, Massachusetts, 6 July 1799 (g.s.). He married at Pembroke 21 December 1749, Mary Jacob, who was born 21 December 1725 and died at Pembroke, 5 December 1786, daughter of Samuel and Susanna Jacob.

The children of Asaph[5] and Mary (Jacob) Tracy, all born at Pembroke:

i. Lusannah[6], b. 21 August 1750; m. at Pembroke, 15 December 1774, Abel Nash.

ii. Thomas, b. 26 November 1752; d. at Pembroke 21 January 1776; unm.

19. v. Jacob, b. 6 August 1760.

12. John[5] Tracy (John[4], John[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Providence, Rhode Island, 20 January 1729. He married about 1755-56 Eunice Jencks, daughter of Obadiah and Alice (Eddy) Jencks. By word of his sister Olive[5] he was living in 1812 at Adams, Massachusetts "with daughter Priscilla." About 1790 John[5] Tracy bought from the state a tract of land in Clarksburg, Massachusetts, adjoining North Adams. This was sold in various parcels down to 1804. In 1793 a part was sold by John[5] Tracy, Sr. and wife Eunice, and a part by John[6] Tracy Jr. and wife Polly. In 1797 a John Tracy and wife Marcy of Williamstown sold land. Williamstown adjoins Adams and Clarksburg and mention of the wife named "Marcy" indicates either the presence of another Tracy family or that John[6] Tracy had married a second time. Many of the first settlers of Adams, Massachusetts, came from Scituate, Rhode Island, even as John[5] did.

The children of John[5] and Eunice (Jencks) Tracy:

i. Mary[6], b. at Scituate, Rhode Island, 14 September 1757.

ii. William, b. at Scituate, 9 January 1759.

iii. John, b. at Scituate, 23 April 1761; m. Polly ——. Had children, among whom was a daughter named Eunice.

20. iv. Thomas, b. at Scituate, 2 September 1763.

v. Eunice, b. ——; m. 24 September 1796, Joseph Dennis. (Adams V. R.)

vi. Priscilla, b. ——; d. 1821 at Newberg, Ohio; m. Dudley[5] Loveland, b. at Adams, Massachusetts, 14 September 1779; d. at Newberg, Ohio, 1855 (John[4], John[3]). Evidently moved to Ohio about 1817-19.

13. Stephen[5] Tracy (James[4], STEPHEN[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Windham, Connecticut, 27 April 1749 and died at Norwich Hill, Massachusetts, 22 December 1822. He married at Lebanon, Connecticut, 23 September 1773, Mary Throop who was born 17 August 1756 and died 13 February 1834, daughter of Captain Daniel[3] Throop (Daniel[2], William[1]) and Sarah Huntington. The latter was a daughter of Deacon Ebenezer and Sarah (Leffingwell) Huntington, and the said Sarah Leffingwell was the daughter of Deacon Thomas Leffingwell who married in Connecticut in 1660, Lydia[3] Tracy (Dr. Solomon[2], Lieut. Thomas[1]) of Norwich, Connecticut.

Stephen[5] Tracy was graduated from Princeton College 1770; was ordained and installed April 1772 as first pastor at Partridgefield (now Peru), Massachusetts. He was dismissed from this church on 23 May 1776 by his own request on account of some doctrinal opinion which displeased his congregation and which he refused to retract, but he continued to reside in the town, taking an active interest in the Revolutionary struggle, presiding at town meetings to raise men and means. On 23 May 1781 he was installed as the first minister of Norwich Hill, Massachusetts. On 1 January 1799 he was dismissed from this church on account of some dissatisfaction which the records of the church do not disclose, but continued to live in the town until his decease. He served short terms as a missionary in Rhode Island (1812) and in Cayuga County, New York (1815). While in Rhode Island he acquired from Olive[5] Tracy (see p. 33) the record of her branch of the Tracy family. This was afterwards in the possession of his grandson John Dimock[7] Tracy, a copy of which is in the Dwight Tracy collection of records in the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society Library; and it proved the descent from STEPHEN[1] TRACY of Plymouth in 1623, to John[5] Tracy (see p. 37) who settled near Adams, Massachusetts in 1790; and through him, to his great grandson General Benjamin Franklin[8] Tracy (see p. 115).

The children of Stephen[5] and Mary (Throop) Tracy:

i. David[6], b. at Partridgefield (now Peru), Massachusetts, 17 September 1774; d. 27 April 1835; m. 7 January 1805, Mindwell Parsons, b. at Southampton, Massachusetts, 1 April 1778; d. 2 January 1833, daughter of Isaac and Mindwell (Kingsley) Parsons. Occupation farmer. No children.

14. Nathaniel[5] Tracy (James[4], STEPHEN[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Windham, Connecticut, 31 October 1750 and died at Hinsdale, Massachusetts, 9 December 1831. He married at Hanover, Connecticut, 19 July 1772, Susannah Bingham*, who was born at Norwich, Connecticut, 9 May 1751 and died at Hinsdale, Massachusetts, 11 June 1829, daughter of John and Susannah (Burnham) Bingham.

Nathaniel[5] Tracy was left an orphan by the death of his mother shortly after his birth, and of his father in the French and Indian War at Fort Edward, New York, 21 September 1756. A paper on file demanding pay for keeping his brother Stephen[5] indicates that his grandfather, Samuel Bishop, may have been his guardian. His father's estate was distributed 29 August 1770, and he received land from that source; he also received land from the estate of his grandfather, STEPHEN[3] TRACY. He moved to western Massachusetts about 1776, (where his brother Stephen[5] had previously located) being one of the first settlers of Partridgefield on land now owned by a descendant. He was an officer in the Revolutionary Army, serving in various Berkshire, Massachusetts, companies.

*The Bingham family and some other genealogies show that Susannah Bingham, daughter of John and Susannah (Burnham) Bingham married Nathaniel Tracy, born April 1748, son of Daniel and Dorothy (Safford) Tracy. This is incorrect as family records show that Nathaniel[5] Tracy of this record married Susannah Bingham. Further, court record in Connecticut showing disposition of the estate of Capt. Daniel Tracy who died 8 Nov. 1760 without leaving a will, does not mention a son Nathaniel, indicating that he died prior to 1760. An old Berkshire, Mass. County History mention Nathaniel[5] as the brother of Stephen[5] of this record, the first pastor of Partridgefield.

Mass. Soldiers and Sailors in the Revolutionary War, XVI, 2, 6.

He was prominent in church and civic organizations. His name is among others on a stone marker in front of the Hinsdale Public Library.

The children of Nathaniel[5] and Susannah (Bingham) Tracy:

22. i. James[6], b. in Connecticut, 29 May 1773.

17. JOSEPH[5] TRACY (THOMAS[4], STEPHEN[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Windham, Connecticut 18 July 1763, died at Hartford, Vermont, 10 April 1829, and was buried in Centre Cemetery, Hartford, near the graves of his father and mother. He married 26 December 1792, RUTH[6] CARTER, who was born at Fryeburg, Maine, 7 December 1772, died at Hudson, Ohio, 20 February 1845, and was buried in old cemetery at Hudson, Ohio, daughter of EZRA[5] and MARY (FIFIELD) CARTER of Fryeburg, Maine (see "Carter Family" p. 142).

JOSEPH[5] TRACY moved to Hartford, Vermont, with his father about 1774. He was a farmer, and the story is that while working in the field he was called to the roadside and introduced to a young woman then visiting her aunt, Mrs. Judith (Carter) Gross, who was the daughter of EZRA and RUTH (EASTMAN) CARTER, and wife of Reverend Thomas Gross of Hartford, Vermont. JOSEPH[5] remarked that this was the girl he was going to marry, and he did so. His farm was on the hill on the north side of White River, about three miles from his father's homesite. The dwelling house built by him about 1800 is still in use (1933) by the present owner, Mr. Herbert Runnals, the property being known as "Valley View Farm." JOSEPH[5] TRACY was a pious, intelligent and companionable man,—had no taste for public office, but was fond of study, and was a citizen of the highest type. He transmitted to his sons high qualities of intellect and character and secured for them the best education compatible with his means. Four of his sons were ministers of the Gospel; three were graduated from Dartmouth College,—Joseph Carter[6] in 1814, Ebenezer Carter[6] in 1819, and Ira Carter[6] in 1829.

RUTH CARTER, his wife, and Samuel[6], his son, were appointed Administrators of his estate on 6 May 1829. After her husband's death she lived with her son Samuel[6] on the old home farm for many years but died at Hudson, Ohio, while visiting her sons MYRON[6] and Stephen[6].

The children of JOSEPH[5] and RUTH (CARTER) TRACY:

27. i. Joseph Carter[6], b. 3 November 1793.
28. ii. Ebenezer Carter, b. 10 June 1796.

20. Thomas[6] Tracy (John[5], John[4], John[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Scituate, Rhode Island, 2 September 1763 and died at St. Marys, Canada. He lived for a time at North Adams, Massachusetts, where he married Elizabeth Read, daughter of Benjamin and Mercie (Yates) Read of Williamstown, Massachusetts.

Thomas[6] Tracy was among the earliest settlers of the Susquehanna Valley in Southern New York, making his way to the upper waters of the Susquehanna River in Otsego County, where he built a raft on which he conveyed his family, including his wife and infant son, down the stream in the year 1790. He landed at the mouth of what has since been known as Tracy Creek, in the present Broome County, New York, then a part of Tioga County. He remained there but a few years, lived for a time near Slaterville, Tompkins County, whence he removed to the Holland Purchase, near Buffalo, and was living there during the war of 1812. After that struggle he removed to Canada, accompanied by his oldest son George[7], and was one of the first settlers of St. Marys, Canada.

The children of Thomas[6] and Elizabeth (Read) Tracy):

34. i. George[7], b. at North Adams, Massachusetts, 1789.

21. John[6] Tracy (Stephen[5], James[4], STEPHEN[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Norwich Hill, Massachusetts, 15

June 1797 and died at Providence, Rhode Island, 10 February 1868 but was buried at West Springfield, Massachusetts. He married (1) at Norwich, 1 November 1821, Betsey Dimock, who was born 21 January 1800 and died at Springfield, Massachusetts, 27 August 1848, daughter of Aaron and Lucinda (Post) Dimock; (2) at Agawam, Massachusetts, 25 September 1849, Julia Ann Moore, who was born 16 March 1816 and died at Agawam, Massachusetts, 4 May 1881, daughter of John and Ruth (Tryon) Moore. John[6] Tracy was a carpenter.

The children of John[6] and Betsey (Dimock) Tracy, all born at Norwich, Massachusetts:

i. Susan[7], b. 2 September 1822; d. at Springfield, Massachusetts, 8 September 1848; unm.

36. ii. George, b. 28 June 1829.

37. iii. John Dimock, b. 11 January 1834.

22. James[6]* Tracy (Nathaniel[5], James[4], STEPHEN[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born in Connecticut, 27 May 1772 and died at Hinsdale, Massachusetts, while on a visit, 29 June 1816 v.r. (1818 g.s.). He married, int. Peru, 1 June 1795, Martha (Patty) Blackman, who was born at Partridgefield

*The records of two men named James Tracy are sufficiently misleading to justify the following explanation:

William and Azubah (——) Tracy of Worcester, Mass. had sons James and Jesse, born 1784 and 1791 respectively. A James Tracy, doubtless the same, married in nearby Northbridge in 1809 a Dolly Ellison, and a Jesse Tracy later married, also in Northbridge. James and Dolly (Ellison) Tracy had a daughter Lurana Taft born in Northfield, 9 Jan. 1811 (no doubt named for a Lurana Taft born at Northbridge, 13 May 1792, an acquaintance of the parents). They removed to Peru, Berkshire co. (where James[6] Tracy had earlier lived) where they had a son William Scott and where wife Dolly died 11 May following. This James married secondly at Windsor, Mass., int. 18 Oct. 1813, Eunice Harwood, said to have been born 10 Sept. 1773 at Uxbridge, who bore him a son Almon, and, surviving her husband (as her will shows) died at Windsor, 20 Mar. 1829. The date of death of this James is not recorded, but in April 1816 John Ellison appeared before the court and stated that James Tracy "has gone on a voyage to sea and is out of the commonwealth," indicating that he may have disappeared. In 1816 or 1818 James[6] returned from New York on a visit to Berkshire county, Mass. and died there making it appear to a casual observer as though he had continuously lived there and had possessed the two wives of the other James Tracy of Northbridge and Peru.

(now Peru), 4 March 1773-4; died at Richford, Tioga county, New York, 20 June 1869, buried beside Congregational church, daughter of Abraham and Sarah (Loomis) Blackman. After the birth of four or more children in Peru James[6] and Patty removed to what is now Richford township, Tioga County, New York, where apparently two brothers and a sister of Patty were living. Here he bought, probably about 1805, lot 421 (about 275 acres) which is the southwest corner lot in the township, and here the rest of their family were born. About 1816 or 1818 he returned to their old home in Berkshire county, Massachusetts on business and died at Hinsdale where he was buried. This left a heavy responsibility on widow Patty, who, by the census taken in December 1820 is shown as the head of a family consisting of nine children of whom four were under ten years of age. She is said to have removed later to Caroline township, over the line in Tompkins county, and to have died at the home of her son Smith on Blackman Hill.

The children of James[6] and Martha (Blackman) Tracy, born at Peru, v.r:

i. Erastus[7], b. 6 June 1796; d. 1 September 1799.

ii. Vine, b. 23 November 1797; d. 20 August 1799.

November 1775 and died at Royalton, 20 March 1865, daughter of Calvin and Eleanor (Porter) Skinner. Calvin Skinner was born at Woodstock, Connecticut, 21 October 1746. He served in the Revolution at Lexington and in the campaign around New York in 1776-77, including also the Battle of Trenton, and he died in September 1777 from privations endured in the service (Lovejoy's History of Royalton, Vermont). His wife Eleanor was the daughter of Lieutenant Samuel Porter who served in the French and Indian War.

1845, Sarah C. Prince, daughter of Joseph and Joanna Prince.

Joseph Carter[6] Tracy was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1814, having studied first law and then divinity. He was pastor of the Congregational churches in Post Mills and West Fairlee, Vermont, 1821-29; edited the "Vermont Chronicle" in Windsor for five years, then the "Boston Recorder" for one year, and for a time was employed on the "New York Observer" where he was intimate with Professor S. F. B. Morse, while the great invention of the telegraph was taking shape.

Feeling a profound interest in the anti-slavery cause, and in the scheme of African colonization, he abandoned his career as an editor to become secretary of the Massachusetts Colonization Society and also of the American Colonization Society for Massachusetts. The Republic of Liberia owes much to him for his valuable aid. His reputation stood high as an able scholar and Christian writer. Among his publications are "Three Last Things," "History of the American Board," "The Great Awakening," several missionary maps, occasional sermons, and many articles in periodicals. He lived at Beverly, Massachusetts from about 1840, and traveled daily between his home and Boston until the time of his death.

29. MYRON[6] TRACY (JOSEPH[5], THOMAS[4], STEPHEN[3] JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Hartford, Vermont, 20 April 1798 and died at Hudson, Ohio, 27 March 1855. He married at Braintree, Vermont, 18 March 1829, SARAH ALLEN[7] WELD, who was born at Braintree, Vermont, 4 May 1807, died at Kent, Ohio, 12 May 1873, and was buried beside her husband in the New Cemetery at Hudson, Ohio, daughter of SAMUEL WALDO[6] and SARAH (HAYDEN) WELD (see Weld Family p. 150).

SARAH WELD taught school at Lebanon, New Hampshire, before her marriage; was a cultured christian woman of highest type, and assisted her husband in his ministries. In her youth she was acquainted with John Greenleaf Whittier, afterwards famed as a poet, and they became very close friends. She was the inspiration of his poem "Memories" and received from him an autographed copy of it.

MYRON[6] TRACY attended school at Salisbury, Vermont, 1816-17, and afterwards went to Dartmouth College, but was not graduated. He was licensed as a Congregational minister in the early part of 1825. Not receiving a permanent call to his liking, he went to Unionville, Geauga County, Ohio, in the early part of 1828, and later to Jefferson, Ashtabula County, Ohio, as a minister, under direction of the "Educational Society." On 21 September 1828 he preached at Claridon, Geauga County, and was called to serve the congregation for Three Hundred and Fifty Dollars per year, one-third of which was to be paid in money and two-thirds in farm products at the current prices. He returned to Hartford, Vermont, in March 1829, and married. He took his bride to Philadelphia in May 1829, where he was a delegate of "Grand River Presbytery" to the General Assembly. They then traveled via New York, Hudson River, and the Erie Canal to Buffalo, and thence to Claridon, Ohio. His church prospered, and during the first year fifty-two persons united with the church. He continued his work with great satisfaction to the people until 8 October 1834, when he received a call from the Missionary Society of the Valley of the Mississippi to act as their agent with headquarters at Indianapolis, Indiana, where he remained about three years. In 1838 he returned to Ohio as a minister at Strongville, Ashtabula County. He moved to Hudson, Ohio, about 1841-42 and was agent of the Educational Society and a missionary minister in that vicinity until his death. In 1845 he purchased a home in Hudson from Esquire Hudson. He was interested in nurseries at Strongville and Hudson.

31. Ira Carter[6] Tracy (JOSEPH[5], THOMAS[4], STEPHEN[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Hartford, Vermont, 15 January 1806 and died at Bloomington, Wisconsin, 10 November 1875. He married (1) at Singapore, Malay, 15 January 1835, Adaline White, who was born at West Brookfield, Massachusetts, 25 September 1809 and died at Hudson, Ohio, 3 March 1851, daughter of Alfred and Sarah (Gilbert) White, a direct descendant of Peregrine White, born 1620 on the Mayflower.

He was graduated at Dartmouth College in 1829, standing first in his class; completed his Theological studies at Andover in 1832 and was ordained at Hartford, Vermont, 28 September 1832, as a missionary. He sailed from New York 15 June 1833, first going to Canton, where he was the second missionary of the American Board in China. He arrived at Singapore, Malay, 24 July 1834, where he baptized the first Chinese convert of the American Mission. His future wife left Boston, 2 July 1834, and they were married immediately upon her arrival at Singapore. Overwork and exposure affected them both, and they returned to the United States in 1841. After regaining his health he worked as a home missionary in Ohio, preaching in Franklin and Streetsboro from 1846 to 1851.

After the death of his wife he went to Patch Grove, Wisconsin (near Bloomington) in October 1851, where he became pastor of a Congregational church, at a salary of Four Hundred Dollars per annum. He married (2) in October 1852, Mrs. Elizabeth (Charlton) Gleason of East Windsor Hill, Connecticut. The church was moved to a new location called Blakes Prairie. In 1856 he went to Spring Valley, Minnesota, where he organized and was pastor of a Congregational church until 1861 when his health failed. He returned to his old home in Bloomington, Wisconsin, where he spent his remaining years on a farm adjoining Blakes Prairie Cemetery, preaching occasionally as his health permitted. For a more complete biography of his life, see "History of Hartford, Vermont, by Tucker."

51. SAMUEL JOSEPH[7] TRACY (MYRON[6], JOSEPH[5], THOMAS[4], STEPHEN[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Indianapolis, Indiana, 15 August 1835, died at Fostoria, Ohio, 20 September 1881, and was buried there. He married

Samuel Joseph[7] Tracy

Arminda (Hogshead) Tracy

at Brevard, North Carolina, 28 December 1865, ARMINDA CATHERINE HOGSHEAD, who was born at that place, 16 January 1847 and died at Fostoria, 3 October 1892, daughter of WILLIAM PORTER and MARY EDNA (MANLEY) HOGSHEAD.

SAMUEL JOSEPH[7] TRACY attended school at Hudson, Ohio. In 1855 he entered Western Reserve College and was graduated with degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1859. He went to Iowa, and at the outbreak of the Civil War enlisted as a private in Company K, 3d Iowa Infantry, and was honorably discharged 11 July 1864. On 30 September 1864 he re-enlisted in Ohio and served as a Captain in Company H, 177th Ohio infantry, being honorably discharged 24 June 1865 at Greensboro, North Carolina. He operated a general store at Graham, North Carolina under the name of Spencer & TRACY, but in the fall of 1865, located at Brevard, in that state, where he opened the first store in the town. While at Brevard he married. In 1868 he moved to Cedar Mountain, Transylvania County, North Carolina where he had a mill. In 1869 he removed to Macon County, the same state, at which place he had a general store. He purchased claims for confiscation by the Union Army of horses and other equipment when it passed through the country, feeling that the Federal government would recognize the indebtedness, but as no provision was ever made for payment of such claims, he lost considerable money. Confederate sympathizers in Macon County resented doing business with northern men, and operations of the Ku Klux Klan made it advisable for him to leave the country. He moved north with his family late in 1870, locating at Webster City, Iowa, where he taught school and in 1873 they removed to Saranac, Michigan. About April 1874, his wife and children returned to North Carolina for a few months and in the fall of that year he settled at Fostoria, Ohio, and his family joined him. He was employed by Roger Alcott in the hardware business. Later he had a business of his own, and was agent of the Baltimore & Ohio Express Company until his death. He never fully recovered his health from a severe illness contracted during his military life and was finally stricken with apoplexy, from which he died. He was a man of high ideals and a devout christian. His name is inscribed on the Soldiers' Monument. in the public square at Cleveland, Ohio.

59. Benjamin Franklin[8] Tracy (Benjamin[7], Thomas[6], John[5], John[4], John[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Owego, Tioga County, New York, on 26 April 1830 and died in New York City 6 August 1915. He married at Owego 23 January 1851, Delinda E. Catlin, born in December 1828 and died at Washington, D. C. 3 February 1890, daughter of Nathaniel and Hannah (Brodhead) Catlin.

Benjamin Franklin[8] Tracy was educated at Owego Academy. He taught school and at the age of nineteen studied law at Owego, being elected district attorney of Tioga County in 1853. He was one of the organizers of the Republican party in New York and a member of the New York Assembly in 1862. In July and August 1862 he raised the 109th and 137th New York Volunteers; on 25 August 1862 he was made colonel of the 109th and on 10 September 1864 was made colonel of the 127th United States colored troops. In 1864-65 he was commander of the military post at Elmira, New York. On 21 June 1895 he received the Congressional Medal of Honor for gallantry in the Battle of the Wilderness; on 13 March 1865 he was brevetted brigadier general for gallant and meritorious services during the war and on 13 June 1865 he was honorably discharged.

In addition to his military service he held the positions of United States district attorney for the eastern district of New York from 1866-73; judge of the New York court of appeals in 1881-82 and secretary of the navy under President Harrison from 1889-93. Subsequent to this last position he resumed his law practice in New York during the progress of which he served as president of the commission which drafted the new charter for Greater New York. Incidentally he was defeated in 1897 as Republican candidate for mayor of Greater New York. His life was filled with honor, but a great sadness befell it when his Washington home burned on 3 February 1890 and caused the death of his wife and younger daughter.

71. William Woodbridge[8] Tracy (William Warner[7], Stephen[6], JOSEPH[5], THOMAS[4], STEPHEN[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Lansing, Michigan, 5 May 1872 and died at Twin Falls, Idaho, 24 December 1932. He married at Ann Arbor, Michigan, 29 December 1916, Gertrude Nash Hunnawell, born at Ann Arbor 1 December 1884, daughter of Joshua Blinn and Carrie (Waestler) Hunnawell.

William Woodbridge[8] Tracy was graduated in 1893 from Michigan State College and was emulated in that respect by two of his brothers in 1896. He became a botanist and plant breeder of note, being held in government employ from 1893 until 1904 and after that at the experimental stations at Chico, California, Kendrick, Idaho, and at Rocky Ford and Fort Collins, Colorado. The fact that four brothers in this family and a second cousin of theirs all made marks for themselves in this particular field of endeavor is most interesting.

The child of William Woodbridge[8] and Gertrude Nash (Hunnawell) Tracy:

i. Frances[9], b. at Rocky Ford, Colorado, 25 June 1918.

72. Harry Woodbridge[8] Tracy (William Warner[7], Stephen[6], JOSEPH[5], THOMAS[4], STEPHEN[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Lansing, Michigan, 5 October 1873 and died at Burlingame, California, 21 January 1928 where he was buried. He married at Gilroy, 26 February 1911, Elizabeth Casey, born there 8 February 1878, daughter of Michael and Elizabeth (Burton) Casey and sister of Georgina Casey who married his brother Stephen[8].

Harry Woodbridge[8] Tracy may be likened to his brother Stephen[8] in another respect for they both became seedsmen as did also an older and a younger brother of theirs. He resided at Detroit, Michigan, from 1880 to 1902, at Gilroy, from 1903 to 1922 and at Burlingame until his death.

The children of Harry Woodbridge[8] and Elizabeth (Casey) Tracy, both born at Gilroy:

i. Harry Woodbridge Jr.[9], b. 10 November 1914.
ii. Katherine Elizabeth, b. 8 February 1918.

73. Stephen Woodbridge[8] Tracy (William Warner[7], Stephen[6], JOSEPH[5], THOMAS[4], STEPHEN[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Old Mission, Michigan, 5 January 1875. He married at Gilroy, California, 9 January 1916, Georgina Casey, born there 16 October 1876, daughter of Michael and Elizabeth (Burton) Casey.

Stephen Woodbridge[8] Tracy is a seedsman, having graduated from the Michigan State College in 1896 with his younger brother. He has been employed most of the time since his graduation, by the D. M. Ferry Company of Detroit, Michigan, but before 1928 he removed to Los Angeles, California. It is interesting to note that three of his brothers followed the same line of work and each of the four achieved outstanding success in it.

No children.

74. Jonathan Edwards Woodbridge[8] Tracy (William Warner[7], Stephen[6], JOSEPH[5], THOMAS[4], STEPHEN[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Old Mission, Michigan, 1 April 1876 and died at Bristol, Pennsylvania, 14 January 1932. He married at Summit, New Jersey, 9 May 1906, Edwina Votey, born at Detroit, Michigan, 7 February 1884, daughter of Edwin Scott and Anna (Gray) Votey.

Jonathan Edwards Woodbridge[8] Tracy resided at Old Mission from 1876-80; at Detroit from 1881-99; at Washington, D. C. from 1900-22 and then at Bristol. He was a seedsman, having graduated from Michigan State College in 1896 and having been in government employ as botanist and plant breeder from 1897 to 1922. Since that time was employed in a similar capacity by the D. Landreth Seed Company.

The children of Jonathan Edwards Woodbridge[8] and Edwina (Votey) Tracy, all born at Washington, D.C.:

i. Anna Gray[9], b. 10 February 1908. Graduated with honors from University of Vermont at Burlington, 1931. Secretarial Course at Pierce School in Philadelphia.

ii. Jonathan Edwards, b. 29 January 1911. Graduated from University of Vermont, 1933. Now (1934) with the Stokes Seed Company at Woodbury, New Jersey.

iii. Frances Votey, b. 10 September 1923.

75. Frank Brodhead[9] Tracy (Benjamin Franklin[8], Benjamin[7], Thomas[6], John[5], John[4], John[3], JOHN[2], STEPHEN[1]) was born at Owego, New York, 7 February 1856. He married 4 March 1905, Elizabeth Cornell, born 11 August 1883, daughter of Edwin Whitney and Mary Bulkley (Burt) Cornell.

PART TWO

SOME ALLIED FAMILIES IN THE ANCESTRAL LINE OF SHERMAN WELD TRACY

COLLIER ANCESTRY

WILLIAM[1] COLLIER was born in England probably before 1590. He was a merchant of London and one of the Merchant Adventurers who subscribed to the Partnership Agreement of 15 November 1626 whereby the Pilgrims were given assistance.

WILLIAM[1] COLLIER came to Plymouth Colony in 1633 in the 'Mary and James' with 196 passengers. With him came his four daughters and servants, among whom were brothers John, Job and David Cole. There is no mention of his wife, so she probably had died before he came over. He immediately took a prominent position in the Colony; he was made freeman in 1633; was on many committees assigned to different activities; assisted in final settlement of accounts with the Merchant Adventurers; was commissioner at first meeting of United Colonies in 1643; served on the Council of War more than once, and was Governor's Assistant from 1634 to 1665. In 1659, on account of his "age and much business," the court ordered the treasurer to procure him a servant. He died in 1670.

Apparently he married after coming to Plymouth, a widow named Jane who had a daughter named Elizabeth and a granddaughter Sarah (Walker) Warren, as referred to in proceedings in court of Plymouth Colony, 11 June 1653.

The daughters of WILLIAM[1] COLLIER who came over with him:

i. Rebecca[2], d. 1698, ae. 88 years; m. 16 May 1634, Job Cole.

ii. Sarah, b. 1615; d. 26 April 1691, ae. 76 years; m. (1) 15 May 1634, Love Brewster who d. 6 October 1650; (2) 1 September 1656, Richard Parke of Cambridge.

iii. MARY, m. 1 April 1635 as his second wife, Governor THOMAS PRENCE.

iv. Elizabeth, m. 2 November 1637, Constant Southworth, b. at Leyden 1615, d. 10 March 1679.

Cole, Brewster and Southworth Genealogies.

PRENCE (PRINCE) ANCESTRY

THOMAS[1] PRENCE was born 1600-1; died at Plymouth 29 March 1672-3, ae. 73 years; son of Thomas Prence of Lechlade, County Gloucester, near Cricklade in Wilts, England.

THOMAS[1] PRENCE arrived on the 'Fortune' in 1621; was Governor of Plymouth Colony 20 years, 1634, 1638, 1657-73; member of Council for War 1642-3, 1646, 1657-8 and 1667, being president of that Council during the last four years; Commissioner for the United Colonies for 13 years, 1645, 1650, 1653-8, 1661-3, 1670-2; he also held various special civil and military trusts, and performed substantial services in various capacities during his entire life in Plymouth Colony. Before the spring of 1632 he had followed his father-in-law William Brewster to Duxbury, and resided there until 1644 when he removed to Nauset (later Eastham) on the cape with six other families. Upon his election as governor in 1657 he was allowed, by special dispensation, to continue living on his farm at Eastham until 1663 when he removed to Plymouth where the Council arranged for a special dwelling for him and where he resided until his death. For further particulars refer to publication "Gates and Allied Families" by Mary Walton Ferris 1931. He married (1) at Plymouth, 5 August 1624, Patience Brewster, who died there 1634, leaving one son and five daughters; (2) 1 April 1635, MARY COLLIER, daughter of WILLIAM[1] COLLIER, who died before December 1662; (3) before 8 December 1662, widow Apphia (Quicke) Freeman; (4) probably before 9 February 1667-8, widow Mary (——) Howes, who died 9 December 1695.

Children:

By first wife, born in unknown order:

i. Rebecca[2], eldest child, b. before 1 June 1627; d. before 18 July 1651; m. 22 April 1646, as his first wife, Edmond[2] Freeman (Edmond[1]).

ii. Mercy, b. at Plymouth about 1631; d. at Eastham 28 September 1711; m. at Eastham 13 or 14 February 1649-50, John[2] Freeman. (Apparently she and her sister Hannah had a double wedding.)

iii. Hannah, d. before 23 November 1698; m. (1) 13 February 1649-50, Nathaniel Mayo; (2) between 1667 and 1671, as his second wife, Jonathan Sparrow, iv. Thomas, d. before 13 March 1672, in England; m. ——.

By second wife:

v. Jane, b. at Duxbury 1 November 1637; m. at Eastham, 9 January 1660, as his second wife, Mark Snow.

vi. MARY, m. JOHN[2] TRACY of Duxbury (STEPHEN[1]).

viii. Elizabeth, m. 9 December 1667, Arthur Howland of Marshfield.

ix. Judith, m. (1) 28 December 1665, Isaac Barker; (2) 1691, William Tubbs.

BINGHAM ANCESTRY

THOMAS[1] BINGHAM was born in Sheffield, England, 5 June 1642, died 16 January 1730, ae. 88 years, and was buried in Old Windham Cemetery. He was the son of THOMAS BINGHAM who married Anna Stenton in Sheffield, England, 6 July 1631, and was one of seven children. His grandfather was THOMAS BINGHAM who was admitted to membership in the Cutlers Company at Sheffield, England, 21 December 1614 as a master cutler. THOMAS BINGHAM came to Norwich about 1659 with his widowed mother, whose name may have been Mary, indicating that she was his father's second wife. He married at Norwich, 12 December 1666, MARY RUDD, born 1648, died 4 August 1726, daughter of Lieutenant JONATHAN RUDD of Saybrook, and the bride of "Bride Brook."

THOMAS[1] BINGHAM was one of the first landed proprietors of Norwich, Connecticut, his house lot bearing date of April 1660. He was made free from Norwich by the General Court in 1671 and removed to Windham, Connecticut, where he was prominent as sergeant, selectman and deacon of the church. He was on the first list of approved inhabitants of Windham in 1693.

Children:

i. Thomas[2], b. 11 December 1667.
ii. Abel, b. 25 June 1669.
iii. Mary, b. July 1672.
iv. Jonathan, b. 15 April 1674.

ix. Samuel, b. 28 March 1685.
x. Joseph, b. 15 January 1688.
xi. Stephen, b. 30 April 1690.

See Bingham Genealogy by Captain Theodore A. Bingham, 1927, for a more extended account of THOMAS BINGHAM.

WARNER ANCESTRY

1. ANDREW[1] WARNER, the emigrant ancestor was descended from the Warners of Great Waltham, County Essex, England. Several families of the same name came to America before 1639. The earliest of these was ANDREW[1], who was residing in Cambridge in 1632. On 20 December 1636 he sold his lands in the town of Cambridge and moved to Hartford, Connecticut, where he was prominent in the early affairs of the colony. About 1660 he moved to Hadley, Massachusetts, and died there 18 December 1684, 90 years of age. The name of his first wife is sometimes given as (or is claimed by some to have been) Mary, the date of marriage is unknown. He married (2) Esther (Wakeman) Selden, baptized 15 June 1617, who died in Hadley in 1693.

ANDREW[1] WARNER had ten children, of whom the last was probably by his second wife. One of his children by his first wife was:

2. ISAAC[2] WARNER (ANDREW[1]) who was born probably about 1645 though no record of the event is found, was living in Hadley, Massachusetts, 1659. He moved to Northfield, and then to Deerfield, where he died in 1691. He married at Hadley, Massachusetts, 31 May 1666, SARAH[2] BOLTWOOD, who died 14 July 1726, daughter of ROBERT[1] and MARY (——) BOLTWOOD of Northfield, Massachusetts. They had fourteen children, among whom was:

3. ANDREW[3] WARNER (ISAAC[2], ANDREW[1]) who was born at Hadley, Massachusetts, 24 February 1672-3; died at Mansfield, Connecticut, between 31 January and 9 June 1732 and married 1695-6, DEBORAH (LEFFINGWELL) Crow, daughter of Lieutenant THOMAS[1] LEFFINGWELL and widow of Nathaniel[2] Crow.

WELD ANCESTRY

1. Rev. THOMAS[1] WELD,* born about 1590, matriculated at Trinity College, Cambridge University, England, at the Easter term, 1611. He was called a "pensioner" which carried a different meaning than at present for it implied that he paid his own expenses rather than receiving help from the college. He received his degrees of Bachelor of Arts in 1613-14 and Master of Arts in 1618. By 1624 two important changes had come to him for in or before that year he had married MARGARET (called Dorselye) and he had become vicar of the church at Terling, County Essex, where his four sons were baptized with the entries in the parish register in his own hand. Presently his leanings toward the Non-Conformists made it necessary for him to leave the country, so with his wife and three sons (the third born having died probably early) he sailed from London on the "William and Francis" 9 March 1632 and reached Boston in the New World on 5 June following. He settled at Roxbury where in November 1632 he was made a freeman and was called to the pastorate of the church there the same year. He opposed the religious views of Anne Hutchinson at her trial in 1637 and he aided Mather and Cotton in the preparation of the Bay Psalm Book. In August (or September) 1641 the General Court sent Rev. THOMAS[1] and two other men, as commissioners to England. After much public service there he became about 1649 vicar of Gateshead Parish, County Durham, across the river Tyne from Newcastle. Some time before his death he was replaced at Gateshead by one Ladler who claimed a prior right to the position. Rev. THOMAS[1] WELD died 23 March 1660-1 at London.

*With Thomas Weld was his brother, Captain Joseph Weld and wife, son, and three daughters, who likewise settled at Roxbury and left descendants who were prominent in the Revolution, and later ship-owners as recorded in a book entitled "The Black Horse Flag, Annals of the Weld Family, and Some of Its Branches" by Isabel Anderson The Riverside Press, Cambridge, 1926.

Children:

i. John[2], bp. 6 June 1625; was minister in England

2. ii. THOMAS, b. 1626.

iii. Samuel, bp. 8 October 1629; d. probably young.

iv. Edmund, bp. 8 July 1631; graduated at Harvard 1650; went to Ireland where he was settled in the ministry and d. 2 March 1668.

2. THOMAS[2] WELD (THOMAS[1]) was born at Terling, England, about 1626 and died at Roxbury, Massachusetts, 17 January 1682-3. He married at Roxbury, Massachusetts, 4 June 1650, DOROTHY WHITING, who was born in 1628 and died at Roxbury, Massachusetts, 31 July 1694, daughter of Rev. SAMUEL WHITING by his first wife, name unknown.

Children, all born at Roxbury, through two of whom the author descends:

i. Samuel[3], bp. 20 July 1651; buried at Roxbury, Massachusetts, 26 August 1653.

3. ii. THOMAS, bp. 12 June 1653.

iii. Samuel, b. 10 August 1655; d. at Roxbury, Massachusetts, 2 September 1737; m. at Roxbury, 28 June 1683, Susanna Polley, bp. at Roxbury 22 December 1661; d. there 20 April 1729, daughter of John Polley.

iv. John, b. 9 October 1657; d. at Roxbury, 25 July 1686.

4. v. EDMUND, b. 29 September 1659.

ix. Margaret, b. 29 November 1669; m. at Roxbury 17 March 1692, Daniel Brewer.

3. THOMAS[3] WELD (THOMAS[2], THOMAS[1]) was baptized at Roxbury, Massachusetts, 12 June 1653 and died at Dunstable, Massachusetts, 7 June 1702. He married (1) at Dunstable, 9 November 1681, Elizabeth Wilson, who was born at Medfield, Massachusetts, 1656 and died at Dunstable, 29 July 1687, daughter of Rev. John and Sarah (Hooker) Wilson; (2) at Cambridge, Massachusetts, 22 May 1700, MARY SAVAGE, who was born at Boston, Massachusetts, 27 August 1667 and died at Attleboro, Massachusetts, 2 June 1731 in the home of her son Rev. HABIJAH[4]. She was the daughter of HABIJAH and HANNAH (TYNG) SAVAGE.

THOMAS[3] WELD was graduated at Harvard in 1671 and was employed as preacher at Dunstable about 1679, after having been schoolmaster at Roxbury. He was ordained as the first settled minister of Dunstable, 16 December 1685, and continued until his death. In 1876 the citizens of Nashua, New Hampshire (just across the line from Dunstable), erected a monument to the memory of Rev. THOMAS[3] WELD, his pastorate having included that area.

HOGSHEAD ANCESTRY

The Hogshead (Hogsed, Hogshed, Hogsett) family are said to be of Scotch-Irish descent, and the immigrant ancestors to have arrived in Pennsylvania about the year 1700, migrating to the Shenandoah Valley in Virginia about 1729-30. A "History of Virginia" by Bruce, Vol. 6, page 95, refers to John Hogshead, born in Scotland about 1685-90; died in Augusta County, Virginia, between January and November 1756.

The Virginia records show a number of Hogshead names commencing with 1742, and indicate that three brothers with families had settled in Augusta County prior to that time. The names of John, William and Samuel appear in the Muster Rolls of Augusta County in 1742, after which no mention is made of Samuel, who may have moved to North Carolina.

John Hogshead died 2 January, 1756 and left sons James, John, David and Michael, and daughter Rebecca.

William also appears on various records and apparently left sons David, William and Michael, and possibly others. A David, a grandson, married Catherine Black in 1782 and evidently moved to North Carolina, as in 1786 David and Catherine of Rowen County, North Carolina, made a conveyance of land in Augusta County, Virginia.

The North Carolina records show a WALTER[1] HOGSHEAD in Captain Alexander's Company of Militia in 1766. His will, dated 16 September 1766 (date of filing unknown), mentions three sons, SAMUEL, William and WALTER, and daughters Sarah, Ann and Jane. (The name of son SAMUEL suggests the possibility that he was named for Samuel mentioned in the Virginia records of 1742, who may have been WALTER'S father, and that son William was named for William, a brother of his father Samuel.) His wife ELIZABETH was to have use of the farm for life, provided she keep the children together and maintain them until they were otherwise provided for. It authorized the boys to be bound out to trade, and the deed for another parcel of land was to be in his son SAMUEL'S name, but subject to division amongst the three sons, indicating that SAMUEL was the oldest son in the family.

Children:

i. Ann[2], b. 1751, who, according to record in possession of Joseph Orr, married 1 March 1772, Robert, son of John and Rachel Orr, and had the following children: 1. Elizabeth, b. 28 January 1773, m. William Blythe; 2. John, b. 15 October 1775, m. Jane Clayton, A.D. 1800; 3. Rachel, b. 21 January 1777, m. Joel Mackey; 4. Ann, b. 30 April 1779, m. —— Johnston; 5. Robert, b. 20 March 1781, m. Miss Dorthard; 6. Janet, b. 9 August 1785, m. Joel Patton; 7. Mary, b. 25 January 1788, m. Col. Joseph Hamilton; 8. William, b. 18 December 1790, went south; 9. Sarah, b. 28 April 1792, m. David Shuford; 10. Matthew, b. 21 June 1795, went to Alabama.

2. ii. SAMUEL, b. about 1753-55 (see text following).

iii. William.

iv. Sarah.

v. Jane.

3. vi. WALTER, b. 1764 (see text following).

2. SAMUEL[2] HOGSHEAD (WALTER[1]) born about 1753-55; is listed in an Army Account Book of Revolutionary Soldiers of North Carolina (Historical Department, Raleigh, North Carolina). He must have married about 1775-76, MARTHA ——. Family tradition relates that he was an officer in the American Revolution and in the Battle of Cowpens 17 January 1781. His home was near the battle field, and his wife MARTHA loaded guns for her husband and other soldiers at the battle, and later killed with an ax, an Indian who had entered her home during battle, thus saving the lives of her small children.

SAMUEL appears in the Census of 1800 as living in Buncomb County, North Carolina, with family consisting of a wife and eight children under 16 years of age. In 1801 he took up 100 acres of land on Laurel Creek located in what is now Transylvania County, North Carolina. The Census of 1810 shows him as living with wife and four children in Buncomb County. He died some time prior to 1820, leaving his wife MARTHA and dependent children, according to the Census of 1820, as follows: a son about 17, and two daughters between 16 and 26, and one daughter under 10 years of age. One of the daughters was REBECCA[3], born 15 February 1803, who married her cousin WALTER[3] HOGSHEAD.

3. WALTER[2] HOGSHEAD was born in Mecklenburg County in 1764. He died near Duns Rock, near the present town of Brevard, North Carolina, 16 January 1854. (Record of Porter Wilson.) He married (name of wife unknown) prior to 1786, as on 6 April 1786 he took title to 150 acres of land on middle fork of Indian River in Lincoln County and the Census of 1790 shows him in Lincoln County with wife and one male child. He moved to what is now Transylvania County shortly after this, as the land records show that he made entry for 100 acres of land in Buncomb County on west side of French Broad River, 22 April 1794, and took title to same 29 September 1798. He made entry for 300 acres of land on head branch of Simeon Dean Creek and for 200 acres of land on branch of Cathey Creek on 25 June 1798. The land records show that he sold some of this land back to the State and to others. The Census of 1800 shows him in Buncomb County with a wife and nine children; and the Census of 1810 with wife and thirteen children. His wife died prior to 1820, as the Census then shows him as over 45 years of age and with only six children in his household. In 1840 the Census shows him as between 70 and 80 years of age, with a female between 50 and 60 years of age, and three children 5 to 15 years of age. In 1850 the Census shows him as 84 years of age, a farmer, with household consisting of Abigail, age 51 years, a male, W. D. age 20 years; and another male, W. R. age 18 years (possibly a widowed daughter and her sons). The Census records indicate that WALTER[2] HOGSHEAD was the father of at least thirteen children, but their names are unknown except one, WALTER[3], probably the oldest son born prior to 1790.

4. WALTER[3] HOGSHEAD (WALTER[2], WALTER[1]) was born in Lincoln County, North Carolina, about 1788-89; died about 1838 on his farm at Hogshead Mill Creek near present town of Brevard, and was buried in a small private cemetery located nearby on a hill, a little to the north of what is known as White Church Cemetery. He made entry for 100 acres of land located in Buncomb County on both sides of Hogshead Mill Creek on 28 November 1814, and apparently lived there until his death. He probably acquired other land, as on 31 December 1834 he deeded to Johnston Davis 378 acres on Hogshead Mill Creek. On 16 February 1820 he deeded to William Porter, 150 acres of land on Hogshead Mill Creek. Since a little later he named one of his sons William Porter, this might indicate that his mother's name was Porter. He married about 1821, REBECCA HOGSED, a cousin, daughter of SAMUEL[2] and MARTHA HOGSHEAD, born near Laurel Creek, 15 February 1803; who died about 1884-85 and was buried beside her husband WALTER in the little cemetery near White Church Cemetery. She married (2) in St. Pauls of the Valley Church (the White Church) 11 October 1843, Col. George Clayton Neill (widower), who was born 27 September 1786; died in June 1879 and buried in cemetery near Davidson's River, beside his first wife, Ann Clayton. [They had a son, George Fidely Neill, born 24 August 1846, died 18 September 1902, who, among other children, had a son Clayton Neill living in Brevard, North Carolina (1934)].

Children, all born on a farm on Hogshead Mill Creek, near present town of Brevard, North Carolina (possibly not in the order shown):

i. Polly[4], b. ——; m. Joseph McGaha.

5. ii. WILLIAM PORTER, b. 13 June 1825 (see text following).

vi. Samuel, b. ——; d. ——; m. 8 December 1857, Caroline Hefner. Children: Walter, who had children, Charles and Mollie; Riley, who had children, Bunyon and Carman; William, who had two sons and nine daughters.

5. WILLIAM PORTER[4] HOGSED was born near Brevard, North Carolina, 13 June 1825 and died near Dacusville, Pickens County, South Carolina, 21 June 1897. He was a farmer and lived most of his life on a farm near the White Church east of Hogshead Mill Creek and later moved to Dacusville, South Carolina. He married at ——, South Carolina, in 1844, MARY EDNA MANLEY, born 7 July 1818; died at Dacusville, South Carolina, 25 March 1902; her parents are unknown except that her mother's maiden name was Kelly.

In this generation, a portion of the family appears to have adopted the spelling of name as H-O-G-S-E-D.

364 THOMAS[1] DUDLEY, bp. in Psh. of Yardley Hastings, Northamptonshire, Eng. on 12 Oct. 1576, was the only son of Capt. ROGER* and SUSANNA (THORNE) DUDLEY. The father was slain in the wars before 29 Oct. 1588 when SUSANNA was called a wid. in the will of her father THOMAS THORNE (sometimes rendered as "Dorne") of Yardley Hastings. SUSANNA was bp. 5 Mar. 1559-60, dau. of THOMAS and MARY (PUREFOY) THORNE and was of armigerous and gentle origin for the Thorne family was armigerous, the Purefoy was of gentle blood with a pedigree established back to 1277. Her maternal grandmother was ANNE FETTIPLACE (PHETTIPLACE) of the ancient family of co. Berks.

*The ancestry of Capt. ROGER DUDLEY is discussed at length by various writers and some claim to have established two generations back of him while others show a purported descent from the Sutton-Dudley family.

THOMAS[1] DUDLEY, deprived in childhood of a father's care, was aided in obtaining his education by a Mrs. Purefoy and by Judge Augustus Nichols, distinguished lawyer, both of them maternal relatives. He is said to have been a page in the family of Lord Compton, later Earl of Northampton, whose home was adjacent to Yardley Hastings. As a young man THOMAS[1] raised a company of soldiers to join the forces sent by Queen Elizabeth to aid Henry IV of France and was commissioned as Capt. of the company. Aft. his return he res. in Northampton, became steward to the Earl of Lincoln, practiced law, and m. (1) in the Psh. of Hardingstone, 1-1/2 miles from Northampton, on 25 Apr. 1603, DOROTHY YORKE, dau. of EDMONDE and KATHERINE (——) YORKE of Cotton End, Psh. of Hardingstone. Of these EDMONDE was bur. 14 Feb. 1614-5 and he willed to his dau. DUDLEY "one guilt bole" and to his grandson SAMUEL[2] DUDLEY 40 shillings. His wid. KATHERINE made a nuncupative will 21 June 1633.

THOMAS[1] and DOROTHY (YORKE) DUDLEY had six ch. b. in Eng. and in 1630 the family rem. from Yardley to the new world in the Winthrop Fleet, prob. in the flagship "Arabella." They res. temporarily at Salem, Cambridge, Ipswich and perh. Charlestown, but presently sett. in Roxbury where the remainder of the lives of THOMAS[1] and DOROTHY were spent. She d. there 27 Dec. 1643 ae. 61 and aft. a second marriage THOMAS[1] d. there 31 July 1653, ae. 76.

Capt. THOMAS[1] became guardian about 1621 to Simon Bradstreet who in 1628 m. his eldest dau. Anne, emigrated in 1630 with the Dudley family and became governor of Mass. Bay Colony in 1679, serving a total of nine years.

While still in Eng. THOMAS[1] had helped to plan and had become a founder of and an investor in the Mass. Bay Company, acting from Eng. as Assistant and Dep. Gov. of the Colony in 1629-30, and aft. his arrival serving continually in civil office for the next 22 years, until his death.

The positions he held included those of Assistant for 8 yrs., Deputy Governor 13 yrs., Governor 4 yrs., Commissioner of the United Colonies 3 yrs. and President of the Congress of the latter body 2 yrs., as well as being Lt. Col. and Maj. Gen. in military service.

The first two governors of the colony were appointed and he as third incumbent was the first to be elected. He was a deeply religious man and in full accord with Gov. Winthrop in maintaining the domination of the established church (of N. E.) over civil as well as ecclesiastical affairs. He was called "a man of large ability and noble character" and it has been said of him that "so entirely was his life devoted to the public service, that a particular biography of him would be a general history of the colony during the same period."

182 SAMUEL[2] DUDLEY, eldest ch. was bp. 30 Nov. 1608 in the Psh. of All Saints, Northampton, Eng. In 1614 he received a bequest by the will of his maternal grandfather EDMONDE YORKE. At Easter 1626 he was admitted as a pensioner (paying for his own commons) to Emmanuel College and matriculated that year. He went to N. E. with his father in 1630. The occupation of SAMUEL[2] was that of planter, farmer, merchant and magistrate and later that of minister. He had 3 wives and 18 ch. The first wife was Mary Winthrop, dau. of Gov. John, and the third, whom he m. c. 1651, was ELIZABETH ——, who was 43 in 1671 and who was living 1702 with her dau. DOROTHY (DUDLEY) LEAVITT. The places of res. of SAMUEL[2] were Cambridge, Ipswich, Salisbury in Mass. and from c. 1650 until his death 10 Feb. 1682-3 or 1683-4 at Exeter, N. H. as their settled minister. It is recorded of him that beside being son of a governor he was half-brother of Gov. Joseph Dudley, son-in-law of Gov. John Winthrop and brother-in-law of two other governors. One of his younger daughters was 91 DOROTHY[3] DUDLEY, d. aft. 1702 and bef. Dec. 1730, having m. at Exeter, N. H. 26 Oct. 1681 MOSES[2] LEAVITT (see 180).

42 EBENEZER[3] EASTMAN, b. 17 Feb. 1681 at Haverhill, rem. in 1727 to Concord, N. H. where he d. 28 July 1748 ae. 59. He m. 4 Mar. 1710 or 3 June 1713 in Haverhill SARAH[3] PEASLEY (see 172) who d. aft. 7 Mar. 1744. EBENEZER[3] EASTMAN when he was abt. 17, aft. the burning of his father's home there in 1698, rem. with the father to Woodstock, Ct. While he was quite young he took part in an expedition against Port Royal; in 1711 when the British fleet under Walker arrived in Boston, one company of the land forces that were to embark, was captained by EBENEZER[3]. On the trip up the St. Lawrence river he was responsible for saving his vessel by courageous action while other ships of the fleet foundered with loss of 1,000 lives. Several stories are told of his resourcefulness on occasions. About 1716-7 he appears to have rem. to Haverhill living there until abt. 1727 when he and his family were the first settlers at Penacook (now Concord).

He m. c. 1702-3 ELIZABETH who has long been believed to be a LEAVITT (see 180) and now is admitted as such, by students, because of the type of evidence,—her father's will naming "daughter ELIZABETH FIFIELD"; the wife of EDWARD[3] FIFIELD being the only hitherto unidentified ELIZABETH of

*Our descent through WILLIAM[1] and BENJAMIN[2] is proved beyond question but we have only circumstantial evidence (though a preponderance) as to the parentage of and identity of our BENJAMIN[4] who m. HANNAH PETERS. Because of the persistent repetition of the name "Moses" and various other significant evidences, we believe, and with this explanation, state, that he was the son of EDWARD[3] FIFIELD (see p. 175).

this period; the use of the names of her parents "MOSES" and "DOROTHY" for two of her ch. and many later descendants, etc.

22 BENJAMIN[4] FIFIELD, b. at Stratham 10 Oct. 1707 was doubtless he who m. bef. 1734 Sarah —— and had there (a) Sarah[5], b. 17 Mar. 1734; d. there 29 Mar. 1782, having m. c. 1754-5 Nathaniel Wiggin by whom she had 8 ch. and (b) David[5], b. 3 Apr. 1736; prob. he who d. 17 Feb. 1742-3.

This BENJAMIN[4] had brothers Jonathan[4] and Moses[4] (the latter name being in honor of the maternal grandfather and not previously used in any branch of the family, nor subsequently, except among the descendants of EDWARD[3] and his wife). Our BENJAMIN[4] named sons by a second wife Jonathan[5] and Moses[5] and the latter name appeared repeatedly among his later descendants. He also named a son David as he had by his (presumed) first wife. Moreover BENJAMIN[4] and Moses[4] are recorded together in 1743 in Brentwood (set off from Exeter in 1742); BENJAMIN[4] and a Jonathan (doubtless his brother) are recorded together at Rumford (Concord) aft. 1750—Jonathan from 1754-8 while BENJAMIN[4] m. 15 Aug. 1747 HANNAH[4] PETERS (see 184) of that place, signed a petition there the following January, bought land there in 1751 and appeared frequently thereafter as either

Years of study of this family, plus a search in New Hamp. of unpublished records, has shown the existence of but one other Benjamin who could have been ours. Namely one b. 2 Feb. 1721 at Kingston to John and Mary (Webster) Fifield, and of him only his birth date has been found.

taxpayer or office holder in Concord—as in 1757-8, 1766-9, 1771, 1776-8, 1782 and 1790. It would appear however that shortly after marriage he returned for a time to Brentwood for he and his wife HANNAH were among the 53 members who organized the second church there on July 23, 1751 and presumably they retained this membership through life for the records of that church tell of his death as in 1797; while in Concord, N. H., his name is not listed as paying the minister or being assigned a pew. HANNAH his wife is said to have d. 8 Mar. 1794.

427 ANNE[1] MARBURY who was bp. 20 July 1591 at Alford, Lincolnshire, Eng., and who m. 9 Aug. 1612 at Alford or London WILLIAM[1] HUTCHINSON was undoubtedly our most unusual and interesting forbear and was, moreover a representative of a greater number of distinguished and gentle families than any of our other traced emigrant ancestors. She was the dau. of Rev. FRANCIS MARBURY who was rector in Lincolnshire and in London, a descendant of the Girsby Lincolnshire family which is armigerous as were many families in her background. Her great-great-grandmother MARBURY was ANNE BLOUNT, said to have been (Lincolnshire Ped., 637) a granddau. of Walter Blount, Lord Mountjoy—which if true would establish her descent from the peerage. On her maternal side ANNE[1] MARBURY was first cousin to the father of the poet John Dryden.

ANNE[1] bore her husb. 14 ch. in Alford, Eng., of whom 11 survived and came to N. E., and 1 more in the New World. Her ideals and life were noble; she was benevolent and self-sacrificing, giving her services freely where sickness or trouble existed. She had an intensely religious interest and unalterable views on the rendition of certain biblical passages which were at variance with the views propounded by the church as established in the Mass. Bay Colony. She claimed the power to prophesy and held meetings at her home in Boston which brought her at variance with her friend and pastor Rev. John Cotton and finally caused the convening in Aug. 1637 of the first synod in N. E. This synod pointed out 82 "heresies" and forbade continuance of meetings, which she defied, and in consequence was tried bef. the general court in Nov. 1637. Altho prosecuted by the strongest theological minds she conducted her own defense "with ability and spirit." She was condemned and excommunicated by the church and sentenced to imprisonment during the winter in the home of "the intolerant Joseph[1] Weld" of Roxbury (brother of Rev. THOMAS[1] WELD) and then banished from the colony in the spring. Many of her adherents were punished and deprived of the use of arms and some of them banished. ANNE, with her husb., ch. and some friends rem. to Rhode Island where they formed a democratic government. Here her husb. WILLIAM[2] HUTCHINSON, who had loyally supported her, d. in 1642. Thereupon she with remaining family and a few friends rem. to the "Dutch Province" settling in the vicinity of Eastchester in Westchester co. N. Y., where within a yr. an Indian massacre cost the lives of 16 of her colony including some of her family. Whether or not one agrees with her on the disputed points one must admire the loyalty to her convictions.
